

Two streams share the execution framework while retaining independent source-local buffers.